KCSO Locates Body in Lake Coeur d'Alene

Worley, ID – The Kootenai County Sheriff's Office Dive Team has recovered who they presumed to be the body of 68-year-old Larry D. Isenberg. Isenberg was reported to have fallen into Coeur D'Alene Lake on February 13, 2017 near Powder Horn Bay while in a boat with his wife.

At 1:00 p.m., the Kootenai County Sheriff's Office received a 911 call from a resident in the Sun-up Bay area near Worley, ID. The caller indicated they could see what they believed to be a body floating face down in the water. KCSO deputies, detectives, and Dive Team personnel arrived a short time later and recovered the body.

Official identification is pending an autopsy to be conducted by the Spokane Medical Examiner's Office in conjunction with the Kootenai County Coroner's Office.

As with all un-attended deaths, our Detectives Division is investigating this incident. This is an active investigation and no further information will be released at this time.
